Signers of Declaration of Independence Collected by Joline Are to Go.

ONLY 28 SETS KNOWN

The feature of part fifth of the Adrian H. Joline library, which will be sold by Anderson Auction Company in their galleries, beginning April 28, is a complete set of autographs of the signers of e Declaration of Independence.

This set was the item most prized by Mr. Joline among his American autographs. He began forming it early in is career as a collector and completed to only shortly before his death. The ast that he acquired was that of Gwinnett. When Mr. Joline wrote his "Meditations" he had not at that time obtained and he wrote: "It is sad to behold that vacant space which should be filled by a Button Gwinnett. I am patiently alting for Danforth to find some Gwin netts in hiding somewhere in Georgia."
This signature, when found some time later, was detached from a memorial signed by a number of leading citizens of Sunbury, Ga., 1772, commending a of Sunbury, Ga., 172, commending a political appointment. This and the Thomas Lynch are the two rarest of these signatures. The William Hooper letter of this set mentions Hewes and John Penn, also a signer from North Carolina, thus bringing into association all three signers from this State. Autographs of the signers are becom-ing increasingly difficult to collect. The omplete sets, J. Pierpont Morgan, the rennsylvania Historical Society and imon Gratz of Philadelphia own two sets each, and the Boston Library, Carpenter's Hall, George C. Thomas and University of Pennsylvania of Philadel Congressional Library, city of Den-Haverford College, S. T. Hollingsworth, Maine Historical Society, Henry Malkan, James H. Manning, New York State Library, Herbert L. Pratt, Thomas et each. In all there are twenty-eight by the Rev. Richard L. Pope.
